THE GENEALOGIST'S VACATION
Minnie Dubbs Millbrook

Comes summer, vacation, and the seekers are abroad in the land - scrambling through weed-filled country cemeteries or sneezing through dusty tomes in dark court house basements. They are collecting, fact by fact, date by date, their grandfathers. For them it is a great pleasure to seek, a great joy to find and an endless satisfaction to review all the rest of their lives.

But some of us have collected all the grandfathers, all the immigrants, all the whole horde of supplementary cousins. The family tree is complete. Must we therefore forego the pleasures of the hunt, the thrill of the discoveries and just settle down to the quiet contemplation of our achievement? Must we let our hard-learned techniques of search, rust and wither away, simply because we have fulfilled our initial objective?

Let's not. Let us choose another subject - one not so near or so dear to us, at least in the beginning. But neither was grandfather very near or dear in the beginning. It was only after one had labored mightily that he emerged from the past and assumed a personality that could be recognized, let alone admired or abhorred. So it is with other past-shrouded persons or institutions or decades. Through your research they take on shape and interest as they emerge.

Some people collect Lincolniana or Rooseveltiana. You might take for your search some lesser known man of history or some acquaintance that you have met through one of your grandfathers. Or you might take your grandfather's town or his county or even your own native town or county. They all probably have a past that is worth looking into and recording. Or perhaps instead of collecting the history of a town, you might concentrate on preserving all the records or historical evidences of that town, or county up to a certain period. You would collect all the old church records, the wills and deeds, the cemetery inscriptions, the old newspapers. (Why should Mr. Burton be the only one to have that kind of fun?) Given that geographical and historical background, which you have already acquired by way of your other searches, the principal cost of such a collection is time and persistence.

But some of you are not yet ready for a new adventure. Still, you find, as you go about ancestor hunting, many records unrecorded by historical libraries - records that would have helped you, had they been copied and placed in a library. Mark that place so that on some later day, when, not obsessed by grandfathers, you can return and make a copy of that whole record. Or better yet, take another day while you are already there and transcribe the record. It may have vanished before you can return. That day you will have begun a newer, broader quest, that for years to come will enliven and enrich your leisure hours.

Comes summer, vacations, and the seekers are abroad in the land - scrambling through the brambles and sneezing in the dusty rooms. They are collecting grandfathers, date by date, fact by fact. Good luck! Godspeed! And may they bring back not only grandfather but a few extra dates and facts that we can publish in this magazine and that future searchers can use and appreciate for time on end!

AT THE APRIL MEETING, Dr. Fred C. Hamil of Wayne University spoke most interestingly on "Immigration Across the Detroit River." In 1796 the French and English residents of Detroit had to decide whether to remain in Detroit and become Americans or cross the river and remain British. The Detroit River, which had been a path, became a boundary between the two shores. It remained a boundary, but never a barrier, since there has been constant migration across it both ways. Up to 1830, many settlers from the states settled along the north shore of Lake Erie. Also after 1895, there was immigration into the western Canadian prairies. But outside these two instances, the flow from Canada to the United States has been constant and much the greater in volume, all along the border. Canadians, like the people of the United States, have always pioneered westward. However, Canada had no mid-west farm lands to attract the farmer due to the extension of the Laurentian Shield down to the Great Lakes. Hence Canadians, going west around 1830, poured into Michigan and adjoining states on the west. The development of the lumbering industry around 1850, brought in many French-Canadians, as well as many British-Canadians. And it is estimated that 40,000 Canadians fought on the side of the North in the Civil War, some led by their sympathies and some lured by the generous bonuses. Prominent Canadian families that came to Michigan were the Edisons, the Couzens, the Chryslers, the Everetts and the Grants. The percentage of Canadian-born citizens in Michigan has declined from a high of about 10% around 1880, but Detroit continues to draw off many of the young people of Ontario province. In 1930 there were over a million Canadian-born residents in this country or about one per cent of the population.

AT THE MAY MEETING, Mr. Cameron McLean spoke on "The Contribution of the Scotch people to the American Farbric." Said he "Link your arm in mine and go back to the Highlands. And his listeners went with him not only to the Highlands but back again to America with William Patterson and his colonists in 1698, and on into later expeditions and settlements. In fact, so charmed were all by his discourse that we begged and he promised his manuscript, so that we may later bring his lecture in fuller form to all our readers.

A COLLYER-SHATTUCK ANCESTRAL OUTLINE
(New York and Michigan Family)
By Marquis E. Shattuck

The first Collyer family of the line sketched below lived in New Amsterdam, New Netherlands, prior to 1644. The first record of the head of this family, Jochem Kaljer (Collyer), was a promissory note signed by him on August 6, 1643. In that same year is a baptismal record of Jacob Kayker, son of Jochem Kayker, which may refer to the same family, as many think likely. In 1644 is recorded in New Amsterdam the baptism of Jeurgie, child of Jochem Kaljer. Jochem died in or prior to 1659 for in that year his widow, Magdalena, was married to Gysbert Theunisse. The following year, 1660, and again in 1663, the sale of property consisting of lots in New Amsterdam "belonging to her late husband" was made by Magdalena Theunisse. Reference to the record appears in the Manual of the Common Council of the City of New York, 1865, which in that year reprinted records or abstracts of records, of early colonial days in New Amsterdam and New York.

The form and spelling of the family name in this first and subsequent generations is a subject of considerable interest and speculation. It appears as Calder, Kalder, Kaljer, Caljer, Calyer, Colyer, Collier, Collyer, and several other forms. In Montgomery County, N. Y., members of the third generation of the family were called Galliers. The Collyer-Shattuck line here recorded used the spelling "Collyer" in later generations.

The origin of the family is likewise a matter of conjecture. It has been presumed by many to be Holland-Dutch although there is one statement of the middle nineteenth century that it was Huguenot. However, this latter strain, probably Walloon, may have come from the distaff line, i.e. Magdalena Waele or a later generation. Professor John O. Evjen, in Scandinavian Immigrants to New York between 1630-1674, discusses the name very fully in an "Excursus" and suggests the possibility that the family origin was Scandinavian. It must be admitted that most of the business and social relations, such as sponsorship at baptisms, etc., seem to have been with Scandinavian neighbors but the evidence is not conclusive.

The children of Jochem Kalder (Kayker, Carels, Kier) and Magdalene (or Margareet) Waale (Wale, Wael) were:

1. Jacob bp. March 9, 1642/3 in New Amsterdam.
2. Jeurgie bp. March 13, 1644.
3. Annetje bp. March 1, 1646.
4. Michel) bp. June 5, 1650.
5. Dorothe) twins
6. Jacobus bp. Feb. 9, 1653.

After the death of Jochem, his children were placed, at his widow's request, under the guardianship of his friend and neighbor, Pieter Jansen Noorman (Jansen the Norseman or Norwegian).

The Second Generation

Michiel (2) Calyer, son of Jochem and Magdalena (Wale) Kaljer, was born in New Amsterdam. He was baptized June 5, 1650. In 1670/1 records show that his brother, Jurrian (2), was living in Kinderhook, at that time part of old Albany

County. It is possible that Michiel might have been living there at that time or, at least, some time prior to 1687. In that year, 1687, Captain-General (Governor) Dongan's decree mentions Michiel (Michael) by name as one of several persons who had "seated and settled themselves on the lands with the consent of the original patentees and as having made improvements thereon" for which reason he was confirmed in his rights by this decree. In 1704-5 Michiel migrated to Loonenburg Patent. This land grant embraced Coxsackie and Catskill, two of the four original towns which became, in 1800, Greene County. Here he bought a tract of land on the so-called "Fountain Flatts" in the old Coxsackie part.

Michiel (2) married twice. His first wife was Engletje, daughter of Dirck ("the Swede") Bye or Byvang. A daughter, Magdalena, was born to this marriage as indicated in a will which Michiel made in 1689.

His second marriage was to Treite or Titje, daughter of Jurrian Jense Van Hoesen. The name "Fytje" which one writer gives for this second wife is not found in the records nor does it appear to be a family name. The first five children by this marriage were baptized in the Albany Dutch Reformed Church; the last three sons were baptized in or into the Zion Lutheran Church, at Klinkenberg, now Athens (which was created a village about 1804 and a town about 20 years later).

The Third Generation

Jochem (3) Calyer, the eldest son of Michiel and Titje (Van Hoesen) Calyer, was born in Kinderhook but probably was raised in Loonenburg. June 16, 1821, Jochem married Christian (Styntje) Vosburgh, daughter of Isaac Vosburgh and Anna Janse Goes (Hoes) of Kinderhook. In about 1731 Jochem Calyer and Isaac Vosburgh, his father-in-law, and five others were given a patent to 6,000 acres of land near the lands they already possessed. After that date, apparently, they were residents of Kinderhook until 1734 or 1736. In the latter year Jochem owned lands in the Loonenburg Patent in that portion which became a part of the old town of Coxsackie. He died before 1751 when his estate was probated. Jochem had seven children, one daughter Anna, who married Will Hollenbeck, and six sons. Two of these died in infancy. Of the other four, it has been possible thus far to trace but one, i.e. Isaac.

The Fourth Generation

Isaac (4) Colyer (Kaljer) son of Jochem and Christina (Vosburgh) Calyer, was born in Kinderhook, December 13, 1725. He was baptized on "the first Sunday of Epiphany" thereafter in the Athens Lutheran Church. He died August 6, 1796. Isaac was a man of legendary strength. In the deed of partition-division of lands of Jochem Calyer, dated 1750, Isaac is mentioned as one of the parties to the instrument and as eldest son and heir-at-law of Jochem Colyer, to whose interest in the lands he succeeded.

February 25, 1750/1, Isaac married Sara, daughter of Dirck and Helena (Suyland (t) Van Vechten. Sara was descended from Teunis Dirckse Van Vechten, who migrated from Holland in 1638 (4), and Matys Balnchan and Anthony Grispel of Artois, France, Huguenot immigrants to New Netherlands, in 1660. Sara was born on July 29, 1729; baptized September 21, 1729; and died December 29, 1789.

The Fifth Generation

Joel Collyer (Collier) son of Isaac and Sara (Van Vechten) Collyer, was born December 13, 1776, probably in Cocksackie, N. Y.; November 7, 1798, he married Elizabeth Haight, daughter of Stephen and Margaret (Ducke) Haight, who was born May 17, 1782. They removed to Wallace Station, Near Cohocton, Steuben County, N. Y., about 1808, where they raised their family. Joel died July 28, 1829; his wife died August 5, 1850. They are buried in the Cohocton Cemetery. They were the parents of eight children:

Sarah V. Collyer, daughter of Joel and Elizabeth (Haight) Collyer, was born near Albany, probably at Cocksackie, N. Y., November 22, 1799, and died in Plymouth, Michigan, September 13, 1886. She was married May 28, 1820, to Alfred Shattuck, at Avoca, Steuben County, N. Y. Alfred was the son of Joseph Shattuck, a Revolutionary soldier, and Chloe Scott of Deerfield, Mass. Alfred was born August 15, 1794, and died August 13, 1847, in Plymouth, Michigan, of injuries received from a fall while breaking a team of colts. Alfred and Sarah lived in Cohocton, N. Y., until 1832, when they migrated to Plymouth, Michigan.

LIEUTENANT JAMES MARTINDELL
A Partisan Soldier of the Revolution
Compiled by

William Clarence Hudson of Royal Oak, Mich.
Continued from March-April, 1948

(The pictures on this page are of Samuel Martindale, Jr., and the home he built in Warren Co., Indiana in the 1860's. They were contributed by his grandson, Mr. Claude Martindale, of Pine Village, Indiana, who also furnished the data for this article.)

Samuel Martindale, Jr. and his Descendants

19. Samuel Martindale, Jr., was one of the more notable and enterprising of the descendants of Lieut. James Martindell. He was born Feb. 28, 1815 16/ in Montgomery Co., Ohio and grew to manhood a few miles further north in Miami County. He married July 13, 1837

Elizabeth Mahurin, an orphan girl living at the home of her guardian, John Martindale, Samuel's older brother. She was born June 5, 1815. We do not have positive proof of her parentage, but it seems probable that she was the daughter of Isaac Mahurin who died in Miami County in 1827 17/, leaving a wife, Catharine and a number of children.

It may be assumed that the Miami Valley, though prosperous and fair, did not offer sufficient opportunities to so ambitious a young man as Samuel Martindale, Jr. So about two years after his marriage he became the fifth Martindale in direct line of descent to seek his fortune in a newer and less developed region than that of his birth. In the late summer of 1839 he purchased a 240 acre tract of land in Warren County, Indiana, 18/ across the Wabash River from the Shawnee Plains where some of his Campbell relatives had pioneered some years before.

Here in the log cabin left by his predecessor, surrounded by a few acres of cleared land, he moved with his wife and first-born child, Henry, and by dint of energy and enterprise rapidly increased his holdings. In a few years he built a better and larger log house to accommodate his growing family.

In retrospect he appears as a forceful and respected leader in the community-loyal to his family and to his country. During the Civil War he was a strong Union man and took an active part in combating and suppressing in his part of the country, the Knights of the Golden Circle, an organization of southern sympathizers, which was regarded as disloyal to the Union.

After the War he projected and built, during the years 1864 to 1867, a large family residence of native stone which is still standing. It is described by J. Wesley Whicker, a local historian, as follows: "The stone in that residence is variegated sandstone with some very delicate shadings and was quarried about three miles from here (Attica, Ind.). When the Martindale house was built it was considered one of the best and most beautiful houses in the state. The prevailing color of the stone was red." The interior of the house was lined with black walnut. Enjoyment of his new home by Samuel Martindale, Jr., was short-lived. He died Dec. 8, 1867, and is buried in Mound Cemetery, a circular mound-shaped cemetery about 200 yards northeast of his home, three-quarters of which had been donated by him for cemetery purposes. On the day before his death he made a will, under the terms of which he made careful provision for the support of his widow and younger children. His wife, Elizabeth, lived until Feb. 6, 1891. They had eleven children, of whom all but one survived childhood. Long afterwards they were described as a merry group of pranksters. When adults, they were all above average height.

191. Henry Wilson Martindale was a young man whose ambition and abilities were apparently greater than his physical strength. He was born in Miami Co., Ohio, July 31, 1839, and taken to Indiana by his parents when still an infant. He grew up on the family farm in Adams Twp., Warren Co., Indiana. He enlisted in Co. B of the 15th Indiana Volunteers at Philippi, W. Va., Dec. 22, 1861, and probably took part in the West Va. campaigns of that winter. He is described in the military records as 5 ft. 10 in. tall, with dark complexion, hazel eyes and dark hair. His enlistment was for three years but he was furloughed May 9, 1862, on account of Phthisis Pulmonalis and returned home. He was made one of the executors of his father's will in 1867, and during the few remaining years of his life took care of his father's estate and also continued in his profession as a teacher. He seems to have had rather frail health and died unmarried Dec. 10, 1871.
192. Jesse Martindale was born November 9, 1841 in Warren Co., Ind. He is said to have had the peculiarity of having one blue eye and one brown eye. He died unmarried, April 25, 1860, and was the first adult buried in Mound Cemetery. His death was caused by burns suffered in the explosion of a kerosene lamp.
193. Mary Jane Martindale was born Nov. 24, 1844 in Warren Co., Ind. She married William Lewis and had one child who only lived twenty days. Mary Jane died Mar. 30, 1873, apparently from childbirth, and is buried in Mound Cemetery.
193-1 Mary E. Lewis b. 1873; d. infancy.
194. John Campbell Martindale was born in Warren County, Ind., Dec. 25, 1845. He was named in his father's will as joint executor with Henry and after the death of the latter, carried on the management of the farm and his father's estate. He married Sept. 18, 1872, Teresa Benjamin who was born June 17, 1849. "The Public Schools owe their being to Nathan Guilford, who was not only the author of the laws, which made them possible, but was the leading spirit in keeping up interest in establishing Public Schools." As State Senator he joined forces with Micajah Williams (father of Ohio Internal Improvements) and Ephraim Cutler (son of Manassah) in pressing the passage of free education laws in Ohio. From 1830 to 1850 there was no Superintendent of Schools in Cincinnati, but the 1850 act gave the city authority to elect one, and Nathan Guilford was elected for a two-year term, at a salary of $500 per year. NOTES OF THE SOCIETY

At the April meeting, the society voted strong support to a resolution asking that old Mariner's Church of Detroit be retained on its original site when the river front nearby is cleared for the new Civic Center. A copy of this resolution will be sent to each member of the City Council and each member of the City Planning Commission.

Agnes Pulcher, daughter of Richard Pulcher and Josephine Armstrong was born July 10, 1875 in Grosse Pointe; married Frank E. Clizbe March 8, 1898 and died March 22, 1948 in Detroit. Nathaniel Armstrong, grandfather of Mrs. Clizbe, was one of the pioneer settlers of Redford and she was associated with that community most of her life. Interment was in the Bell Branch Cemetery of Redford. Both Mr. and Mrs. Clizbe were charter members of the Detroit Society for Genealogical Research.

AMONG OUR MEMBERS Leonard Beavis, graduating from Cooley High in January, boy with highest grades in his class, expects to matriculate at Massachusetts Institute of Technology in September. . . Mr. Hudson, upon election as chairman of Board of Supervisors of Oakland County, gets picture and fine write-up of his long civic services, in Royal Oak newspapers. . . Charter member Rebecca L. Crittenden, former librarian, is now searcher with the Detroit Information Service, which offers among other services genealogical research and translation. . . Annual report of Detroit Public Library lists thirty-four members of the D. S. G. R. as donors during the year. . . Mrs. Harry Peets, along with many other artistic activities, draws and paints coats of arms. . . Mrs. Campbell McComrick is active in the forest fire prevention program of Elizabeth Cass chapter DAR. . . Mr. Robinson is at it again, mixing history and art. He arranged the current exhibition of arms and armor of the 16th century at the Art Institute. . . At the recent exhibit of heirlooms at the Women's City Club, Mary Ann Lowell showed a desk of her grand-uncle, James Russell Lowell, a silver teapot by Jacob Hurd, and an American speller of 1792. . . Mrs. Thomas M. Ball exhibited old jewelry, jewel boxes and hand-made watches. . . In the book collectors show at the library, both Mrs. Stones and Mr. Leonard Archer displayed items. Mrs. Stones collects books on the history of printing; Mr. Archer, books on calligraphy. Mr. Archer is no mean calligrapher himself and samples of his art in handwriting are often to be seen about Burton on display cards and even on catalog cards. A most unusual and fascinating interest.

Extensive genealogical materials belonging to our late member, Frederic J. McMurtrie, have been given to the Burton Collection. . . Mrs. Frederick L. Osborn and committee of Kesiah Goss DAR have presented an index of the 1944 year-book, "Cemetery Records of Orleans Co., N. Y., to Burton. . . Mr. Zwinck sends to the society a genealogical index of his Fetter genealogy, now out of print and hard to find. Lucas Fetter (Vetter) settled near Johnstown, N. Y. in 1754 and early descendants resided in the Mohawk Valley. . . We also tardily note that Mr. Zwinck had an Alison-Burkhart Bible Record in the January N.Y. B. & G. R. . . Mr. Robert Moore gives society a copy of vital statistics abstracted from Chatham (Ontario) Journal July 1841 - July 1844. . . Member Moore also appears in the March Genealogical Helper with article "Genealogical Records in Canada". . . In April Detroit Historical Society Bulletin Mrs. Stones reveals the recent discovery of an hitherto unnoticed mention of a printing press in the John Askin Papers of 1787. This is the earliest present record of a press in Detroit. . . Mrs. Harris and Records Committee exhibited some of year's work at May meeting. They showed scrap books made and indexed, charts and other accessions filed and arranged. . . Recommended reading: "The New Look at Ancestry" April DAR Magazine and "Genealogy" in Indiana Magazine of History for March.
